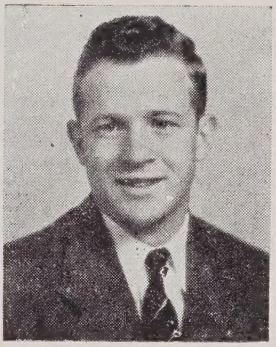
Welcome



On behalf of the student body I bid you welcome to Wake Forest College. You are now a part of an institution well known for its warmth and friendly spirit. It is this spirit of friendliness which makes the pursuit of academic obligations here enjoyable as well as rewarding.

Since the College is not large, you will form many fruitful and lasting associations with your classmates and members of the faculty. You should have a minimum problem in making adjustments because all of your activities will be centered around the campus. You should find satisfaction not only in the discharge of your studies but in gaining a sense of community spirit. Each of you can and should during your college career make some contribution, no matter how modest, to the institution of which you are now a member.

It is my privilege and responsibility to introduce you to a tradition as old as our Magnolia studded campus, the Wake Forest Honor System. Basically, the honor system is nothing more than an affirmance in the belief in individual integrity. Here at Wake Forest the honor code underlies our whole college structure. Your word is presumed to be the truth; your work is presumed to be your own. The student body jealously guards this heritage from tarnishment by those who would not hold their honor inviolate. Therefore, the penalty for a deviation from the honor code is quick and severe.

Again I welcome you to the Wake Forest campus with the sincere hope that your life and work on the campus will be profitable and pleasant and in every way meet your highest expectations.

STATEMENT OF PURPOSE

By
Dr. Harold W. Tribble

Wake Forest College exists to train men and women for service in terms of the Christian Faith. The principles and ideas set forth in the Bible, and especially the teachings of Christ, provide the context in which the true meaning of life must be comprehended. The translation of these moral and spiritual values into character and service is the task to which this school is committed.

The pursuit of truth is regarded as at once a privilege and an obligation. As there is no conflict between truth in the realm of religion and truth in the realm of science, so we seek harmony and integration in all areas of learning. Students and professors alike are challenged to achieve their maximum in creative thinking and intellectual freedom on the basis of the allegiance to truth as it was incarnated uniquely in Jesus Christ and must ever be reincarnated in every Christian.

The pursuit of truth is not only an intellectual endeavor but a moral and spiritual quest. It is not only an individual discipline but a group enterprise. Therefore our college must always be a community of learning, very much like a family. The integrity of each person must ever be respected and yet the many individuals must work together to the end that the community shall grow in knowledge, increasingly acquiring the skills that are required for life on the higher levels of achievement and service. This means that the character of the school will always be determined by the behavior of the individual members of the community. Therefore student government, faculty leadership in the experience of learning, and the service of the administration in providing adequate facilities must be wrought into one pattern of life, the result of which must be happiness in study and fruitful service throughout the rest of life.

Since it is deemed necessary that each student should know the rules which govern the student body and to learn as much as possible about the activities and organizations on the campus, the Orientation and Guidance Program Committee has designed a test to be given on the Student Handbook of Wake Forest College on Thursday, September 20. Failure to pass this test will result in a reexamination on each succeeding Thursday until each student shall have passed it. Failure to attend the meeting to take the test shall result in having one (1) chapel cut counted against you for each test missed. Let us urge you to study this handbook so that you may pass the first examination.

TRADITIONS and HISTORY

Magnolias and moonlight . . . a brick wall and ivy covered buildings . . . the bookstore and Pub Row . . . Bostwick Dorm and the law school . . . the Chapel and Sunday morning services at the church . . . all this and several more pages of things make up what is known all over the country as Wake Forest Tradition.

And the tradition makes that intangible thing that many people reverently refer to as the "Wake Forest Spirit" but no one dares try to describe—perhaps because it's such a big thing and composed of so many actions and people.

We here at Wake Forest are bonded together by friendship and in the College family we all speak to each other and call most of our associates by names. They say you can always tell a Wake Forest man for he says "Good Morning" to everyone he meets on the street even in a crowded city.

The magnolias even find their way to the slogans of the publications as the case of the Old Gold and Black—Covers the Campus like the Magnolias. And under each tree there's a bench where one sits to listen to music from the tower or to study on hot afternoons or to pin that favorite girl. Yeh, there's quite an atmosphere for the romantic —moonlight on white magnolia blossoms with the Chapel Tower reaching high into the night.

And inside the buildings at night the lights burn long and bright. On pub row—the four doors on the far side of the Social Science Building—there is a scene of bustling activity as the paper goes to press or the magazine is made ready for the printers and the log is typed for tonight's broadcast from WFDD or pictures are taken for this year's edition of the Howler. Cigarette smoke and bright lights . . . battered typewriters and copy paper and confusion . . . all typical of the Row and all scenes that live long in the memory of each graduate and show on every staff member in the form of bloodshot eyes and ink smears on every good shirt.

And then there's the bookstore where new acquaintances are made and dates booked and meetings held—very informally! Between classes there's the usual rush of several hundred students trying to get a coke before the bell rings for that Spanish class or that Psychology class.

The building each have a history all their own—the social science building used to be the gym. Wait Hall used to be the entire college plant and has burned several times and been rebuilt until now it houses the administration in a very elaborate way and also class rooms and professor's offices. On third floor the Philomathesians and Euzelians, who date back to the very beginning of the College, have their weekly meetings in their respective halls. Each fall and each spring they celebrate Founder's Day at which time there's keen competition between societies to proclaim the best speakers of the year.

The Alumni Building which is a half century old has acquired an odor all its own—that of pipe smoke! Aspiring young newspapermen and short story writers get their start on third floor with "Cap'n Eddie" Folk. Also up there freshmen take English one (maybe major in it!) and the College Theatre meets and Pub Board gathers way into the night to pick the editors and business managers for the publications.

Coming up the walk from town one always hears a conglomeration of everything from Bach to Stravinsky as 'Fessor Mac or Mr. Giles try to teach some hopeful concert pianist the way to do it right . . . and on the other side are those cubby holes known as "Practice Rooms" where many a student has practiced blisters right on his hand. Up there is where the band and glee club meet, too.

And the other day we began to wonder how many doctors all over the country remember the grueling days spent over in chordate lab with a cat. And how many thousands of others still have nightmares of freshman biology and first year chemistry.

The girls' dorms number two—Bostwick and Johnson. In Bostwick Miss Johnson puts all the freshmen with a few others to fill in the rooms. Must be tradition or something how every fall the men all flock over there to look over the new crop. Also here is what's known as Bostwick Beach—that's up above the porch and the balcony made by the huge stone columns where coeds flock at the first sign of warm weather. At this time the law students also begin to study nature from their windows, too!

On Saturdays in the fall people flock to Grove's Stadium and all afternoon (if Coach Rogers has a good team!) there are echoes of "Oh, Here's to Wake Forest" and "Dear Old Wake" from the vicin-ity of the field. Afterwards there's handshaking and back-slapping and new people meeting old grads and parents saying good-bye after the game and parties for everyone. Sometimes far into the night the bell is still tolling victory. All freshmen and many new students stop by Wait Hall after every win to take a turn at pulling the rope. It's tradition, you see, and that's what make Wake Forest something special.

At Homecoming the frat men each try to outdo each other with decoraions and even the coeds catch the spirit and rise at four ayem to string up crepe paper and make signs in competition for the coveted trophy to be awarded at half-time. On Saturday night the frat men and their dates journey to Raleigh or Durham for the annual Homecoming Dance and parties.

At Christmas decorations again are brought out and holly and Christmas lights deck every room and building. The week before the holidays begin students celebrate together. Frat men make frequent appearances at the dorm after closing hour to serenade the coeds who sit in the windows and watch. The IFC usually has a Christmas dance and each group has its own gatherings in anticipation of the forthcoming season.

In May the climox of the school year comes in the Magnolia Festival, a week-long presentation with each campu sorganization participating. A Magnolia Court is elected and on the last Saturday of the festive week the WRA presents them along with a program of dance and music for the Court. Proud parents and loyal friends gatehr on the lawn to watch. During the week the band and glee club as well as the Opera Workshop gives concerts and the College Theatre presents its annual Shakesperian production. Art exhibits and special issues of the paper and radio shows all fit into the scheme to form a week of activity.

And soon comes June and graduation for some. Where they'll go or what they'll do is unknown but with them they carry the "Spirit" composed of little things that make a great whole.

And all these things we've been talking about for several pages contribute to the feelng although there's more, much of which is not put on paper for that would make it a rule instead of tradition.

Anyway, we'll see ya' at the Bookstore!!!

WHERE TO GO

DEACON TOWN

Downtown Wake Forest supplies the necessities of living to the local college student—such items can be bought up town as food and toothpastes and cokes and lipsticks and even new automobiles and living room furniture along with the kitchen sink. We don't know how to give the exact location of all these places of business but we can say that if you start on the main drag at the underpass, the eating places just fall in line.

First off just under the underpass, there's Bob's College Inn, open every day and all weekend when it becomes quite the place! Across the street up on the hill is Dick Frye's where you always get good steaks and friendly atmosphere. The others are located on up the street en route to the post office. Brown's is in the middle of the block just across from Shorty's, where the coeds don't go and ALL the boys go. Mr. Brown is open nights to serve sandwiches to hungry students taking a break. On the corner there's a sign that says "College Soda Shop," but ask anyone and they'll tell you that it's "P.D.'s" where everyone eats sooner or later, mostly sooner. If you're looking for someone try PD's first! There are several other eating places in town including Wooten's Homotel out on South Main Street, better known to students as the Raleigh Road. Out at Mrs. Wooten's there're always good homemade biscuits and delicious apple crisp even if you do have to walk four or five long blocks to get it. That takes care of the three-times-a-day-business!

Then there're two drug stores—Mr. Holding's and Mr. Edwards'. They have everything—even ten cent sandwiches! And you send your film off to get pictures of the favorite ones and get your magazines and newspapers there and buy stationery for letters to the folks and then they have the standard soda fountains.

There are several beauty parlors for the coeds in the event they need beautifying, and for the men there's Alston's Barber Shop in the basement location just past Dick Frye's and City Barber Shop just up the street.

There's a five and ten for odds and ends and a hardware store as well as a feed store. With the big neon lights B&S announces its presence with a selection of ladies' as well as men's clothes in name brands. On the corner in the middle of the town is Ben's which caters especially to college men with just the right thing for the right occasion.

And to keep those clothes in order that we buy from B&S and Ben's and also those we bring from home and Raleigh, there are three cleaners. They have representatives in the dorms and fraternity houses or you can carry them either to Miller's on the corner just past the underpass or to B&E, also just past the underpass, or to General on around the corner.

The business section also includes several grocery stores and two florists, and for entertainment there are two movie theatres with program varying from horse operas to Hamlet.

Then there's the Ford place run by Mr. Cruzer and Mr. Tynes. They offer service on all makes and models of cars. Just call them!

The United States Post Office is the most popular place and each student averages at least two trips a day to peer into an empty box except on Old Gold and Black day, which is dusting day. Students may rent boxes or get their mail from general delivery.

The bank where students deposit money and cash checks is located just next door to Edward's Pharmacy and across the street is Mr. Jones and the railway express where the trunks come in. He closes at five o'clock each afternoon, so be sure you get there before then!

Scattered throughout town are numerous service stations where we're sure you'll find your favorite brands of gas. And for ambulance service call Beddingfield's out on Main Street. Also located at the same place is the Western Union office, and the number's listed in the phone directory.

And again just under the underpass something's located—the bus station.

On campus the College Bookstore maintains a soda fountain for quick breakfasts and mid-morning snacks as well as keeping a supply of all the text books and notebooks. Just off the campus there's a cafeteria for eating convenience when you're in a rush.

And that's where the students of Wake Forest College spend their money and secure the essentials!

WHAT YOU CAN DO

Although we come here to study, the College encourages participation in some extra-curricular activity. At Deacon Hollow there is a variety reaching almost as high as a canning company declares! Administration and faculty maintain that a balance between curriculum and extra-curriculum is essential to a happy four-years in College. So in the next few pages we include a brief survey of what's going on on campus and what you the student can do! If you can write, pick publications. If you can act, the College Theatre wants you! If you sing, stop by the music department! Be sure you do what you most want to do!

Publications

Publications occupy an important place on the campus. They also occupy four offices known as "The Row," which is located in the Student Center. This is by far the busiest place on campus. Long after everyone else is in bed, sleepy aspiring writers peck their typewriters to beat the inevitable deadline! But the long hours and hard work bring rewards of journalistic and business experience that might land that job in four years—and fun! The four student publications include the OLD GOLD AND BLACK, THE STUDENT, and

THE HOWLER as well as RADIO STATION WFDD. They are governed by a board composed of student editors and business managers as well as representatives from each staff.

Old Gold and Black

OLD GOLD AND BLACK, the weekly newspaper, is ranked as one of the leading collegiate newspapers in the South. It is the medium of student opinion and acts as official bulletin for student affairs. Working for the OG&B (as it's called affectionately by all who read it!) is the quickest and best way to become acquainted with campus life and besides all that it offers practical experience in writing and business on a near-professional basis. If you can peck a typewriter, sell an ad, or feel inspired when you smell newsprint, then pal, we got a place for you! This year's editor is L. M. Wright, Jr.

The Student

THE STUDENT is an outlet for literary and humor creations of students. It's published five times a year and considers for publication any short stories, poems, articles, or cartoons submitted. This is the place for you when you read a story in a magazine and think to yourself: "Hum, I can do better than that!" For further information concerning the magazine, see either Tom Mezger or Blevyn Hathcock, co-editors for this year.

The Howler

"When's the Howler coming out?" is a familiar cry around campus each spring as each of us begins looking forward to the day when THE BOOK will be back from the printers and each of us can look for our own picture and giggle over the deadpan expression of a buddie in the college annual, THE HOWLER. It's the book that tells the story of each college year — a story that will be relived many times in the future as the college yearbook is dragged from the closet shelf. Like all the other publications, it's under student management and all work is done by interested students. Ken Grigg will head the staff for the 1952-53 book.

W F D D

"This is WFDD, the radio voice of Wake Forest College." So rings the voice of the boy who sits next to you in English 2 as he broadcasts from the 580 spot on your dial. WFDD is student operated and is on-the-air in the afternoon and evenings with programs that range from national and local news to sports coverage of ball games both here and away as well as drama, interviews, and many hours of music which is programmed to suit every type of college listener. The station is affiliated with the Intercollegiate Broadcasting system and offers actual air-time for anyone interested in radio both professionally and otherwise. Ida Kay Jordan is station manager for the year.

Dramatics

"The good of art in a better atmosphere, by the best of friends."

The Wake Forest College Theatre has established quite a varied program here on campus during its years of existence. Whether you be apt in acting, art work, radio, business, lighting, costuming, make-up, scenery, staging, or what-have-you, the College Theatre offers you an opportunity to put your interest to work.

Each year the group presents three major productions; one in early fall, one in mid-winter, and the last a two-day run of a Shakesperian play which is a traditional part of the annual campus Magnolia Festival in the spring. In addition, the Theatre sponsors readings by local professors as well as guest speakers who are outstanding in the field of dramatics.

Students interested in dramatics and membership in the Theatre may associate themselves with the organization and work they do is credited by a point system. When one has earned a sufficient number of points he becomes a full member of the College Theatre and additional points entitle him to be voted on for membership in Alpha Psi Omega, national honorary dramatics fraternity.

The Theatre welcomes your membership and pledges continuance of its policy quoted above.

Debate

The debate team of Wake Forest has in the past several years attained a position of national prominence. It has made quite an impressive record in state, regional, and national invitational tournaments. The speakers make frequent trips all over the nation to take part in debates, after-dinner and oratorical contests, and other forms of competitive speaking.

Members of the debate squad are chosen in the fall. All undergraduates in good standing are eligible to participate in forensics and to represent the college in inter-collegiate competition. Both men and women students have become outstanding in the nation for their speaking ability.

After one has participated in the required number of rounds of competition, he becomes eligible for membership in Pi Kappa Delta, national honorary forensics fraternity.

Musical Activities

Several musical organizations provide ample opportunity for the exercise of musical talent and for the social benefits which result from the association of students with common artistic interests in the field of music .

The musical interests of the College are represented by a number of groups, including the Glee Club, of seventy-five mixed voices, the A Cappella Choir, of forty mixed voices, the Male Octet and Quartet, the Girls' Sextet, the Little Symphony Orchestra, and the College Band. All groups are a source of entertainment for the student body.

The vocal units present frequent concerts on the campus and take several short trips to neighboring towns during the year. In the Spring the A Cappella Choir makes a more extensive tour, performing in churches and educational centers throughout the State. The entire Glee Club joins with the Orchestra for the annual performance of Handel's Messiah at Christmas time. The colorful College Band furnishes music for football games, pep rallies, and other special occasions. Tryouts for freshmen and others are held immediately after the opening of College in the Fall.

Each Spring an All-Campus Sing is held, with most College organizations participating for awards.

On fair evenings and Sunday afternoons record concerts are presented over the loud-speaker system in Wait Hall Tower.

A limited number of memberships in the Raleigh Civic Music Association are available to students. The association sponsors a series of six concerts by outstanding musicians, held in the Raleigh Memorial Auditorium. For information about these memberships consult the Head of the Department of Music.

Literary Societies

The two oldest and most traditional student organizations on the campus are the Philomathesian and Euzelian Literary Societies. They are open to all students interested in broadening their education through learning the art of public speaking.

These societies working down through the years deserve in large measure credit for the wide reputation of the Wake Forest students as good speakers. Meeting weekly in their own appropriate halls on third floor Wait Hall, these groups are regarded as important aids in the work of education, in cultivation and directing the taste for reading, and in the correct formation of habits of public speaking.

Keen competition is in evidence between the societies during the entire school year and particularly on Society Day in the fall and Founder's

Day in the spring when they meet in jointly-observed celebrations to test the speaking ability of the respective societies in a varied speech contest.

Athletics

The College provides a full athletic program for all students. The Director of Athletics has general supervision of all athletic activities.

Emphasis is placed on outdoor sports, and every student is urged to spend some part of the day in vigorous open-air exercises. For this purpose there are ample athletic fields, tennis courts, and a nine-hole golf course. During the past year new facilities have been added. The golf course has been improved considerably and five new tennis courts were made available during the past year. The gymnasium provides for indoor sports. Freshmen are required to take physical education in classes.

In intercollegiate athletics, Wake Forest is strongly represented in the Southern Conference by varsity teams in football, basketball, baseball, tennis, golf, and track. Although seldom champions, the Demon Deacons win their share of conference and inter-sectional contests.

Under the direction of the Director of Intramural Sports and the Intramural Athletic Council, social and residential units engage in contests throughout the college year. The sports are touch football, basketball, volleyball, softball, track, tennis, golf, and table tennis. A system has been arranged whereby the top teams of each sport are given a certain number of points toward an all-sports trophy, which goes to the group having the highest aggregate score for all contests.

Student managers of the various sports receive award keys, and the senior manager receives a monogram.

The Women's Athletic Association, working with the Instructor of Physical Education for Women, sponsors a recreational program which includes the following sports: soccer, speedball, volleyball, field hockey, basketball, softball, golf, tennis, archery, badminton, horseshoes, and table tennis. There is a point system for individual awards.

The physical education department plans to sponsor several "fun-nights" during the year, at which time there will be ping pong, square dancing, and other forms of entertainment. All students are invited to attend.

Baptist Student Union

Student religious activities on the campus are directed by the Baptist Student Union. Its purpose is to help undergraduates find the place of religion in life and to foster closer relations among the religious organizations on the campus.

The B. S. U. is open to all students and sponsors a variety of parties and other social functions as well as regular Religious Focus weeks and other meetings on campus. It works in close harmony with organizations of Methodists, Presbyterians, and Episcopalians which have been formed on campus.

The B. S. U. includes a number of unit organizations, each of which performs a significant function. The Cullom Ministerial Conference provides an opportunity for fellowship and instruction for ministerial students. It is named for Dr. W. R. Cullom, professor emeritus of religion, who was the first regular instructor of Bible at Wake Forest College.

The Young Woman's Auxiliary makes a variety of important contributions to the life of the College, including a program of community missions. The church-wide YWA is divided into Hall Circles in the dormitories and group meetings are held frequently.

The Christian Service group aims "to promote Christian missionary activities on the campus and in the community." It meets at announced times during the month.

The Religious Education Club offers an opportunity to study aspects and problems of that profession. During the year the group meets twice a month and programs consist of student demonstration projects and visiting speakers in various phases of the field.

The Student Volunteer group tries to establish contact with, and fellowship among, those students on the campus who are studying for missionary service.

On Sunday BSU activities include Sunday School, Training Union, and Fellowship after church at which time students are in charge of programs.

The BSU works in a variety of fields: it assists in the Freshman Orientation Program; it is sponsoring this year a campus-wide Religious Activities Week during which time it will join with all the other organizations on campus to present a full week's program; it holds daily prayer and vesper services; it sponsors weekend socials; it furnishes undergraduate speakers for neighboring churches; and it performs numerous day-by-day services.

Brightie White is this year's president of the BSU and Mrs. Ray Greene is student secretary on campus and works in close cooperation with the BSU Council.

SOCIAL FRATERNITIES

Wake Forest's twelve Greek-letter fraternities, ten of them social, two of them profesional, play an important part in student life. These groups take the lead in providing social entertainment for the campus, beginning with "rushing" in the fall and continuing through a series of dances and house parties in the spring.

Among the innumerable choices that confront the freshman and, because of future commitments, call for all the good judgment which he may possess, are the choices regarding fraternities. Shall he accept an invitation to join a fraternity if invited? Which shall he join if several invitations are received? Don't make a hasty decision; it's an important one.

The student population is nearly equally divided between fraternity and non-fraternity men so that whether a man joins a fraternity or not he is in good company. Among all, the first loyalty is to the College.

The two law fraternities are professional in nature and their membership is limited exclusively to students of the law.

Rules governing the conduct of social fraternity affairs and plans for inter-fraternity activities are drawn up and administered by the Inter-Fraternity Council, consisting of representatives of all the fraternities. A faculty Committee on Fraternities works in conjunction with the Inter-Fraternity Council for the purpose of maintaining a high standard of conduct and scholarship.

The Social Fraternities on the Campus are, in the order of their appearance as Chapters in a National Fraternal Organization:

Kappa Alpha	Delta Sigma Phi
Lambda Chi Alpha	Pi Kappa Alpha
Sigma Pi	Sigma Phi Epsilon
Kappa Sigma	Theta Chi
Alpha Sigma Phi	Sigma Chi

Dear Old Wake Forest

DEAR OLD WAKE FOREST!

THINE IS A GLORIOUS FAME,
CONSTANT AND TRUE.

WE GIVE THEE OF OUR PRAISE,
ADORE THINE ANCIENT DAYS,
SING THEE OUR HUMBLE LAYS,
MOTHER, SO DEAR.

DEAR OLD WAKE FOREST!
MYSTIC THY NAME TO CHEER; BE THOU OUR GUARDIAN NEAR,
FORE'ER AND AYE.

WE BOW BEFORE THY SHRINE,
THY BROW THAT LAYS ENTWINE,
ALL HONOR NEW BE THINE,
MOTHER, TODAY.

Oh, Here's to Wake Forest

Oh, here's to Wake Forest, a glass of the finest
Red, ruddy Rhenish filled up to the brim!
Her sons they are many, unrivaled by any;
With hearts o'erflowing we will sing her hymn

(Chorus)
Rah, Rah, Wake Forest, Rah!
Old Alma Mater's sons we are;
We'll herald her story and die for her glory
Old Gold and Black is ever waving high.

As frosh we adore her, as sophs we explore her,
And carve our names upon her ancient walls,
As juniors patrol her; as seniors extol her,
And weep to leave fore'er her sacred halls.
(Chorus)

Though fortune forsake us and fate o'ertake us,
We'll ne'er forget our dear old college days,
And o'er memory's treasure we'll drink without measure,
And sing fore'er our Alma Mater's praise.
(Chorus)
